

ABSTRACT

Methods for assaying for viral-related activity are disclosed. The assays of the invention provide for the identification of biologically active phenotypic probes and cellular targets and fragments, variants and mimetics thereof.

5